

WEATHER GOOD FOR THE WHEAT

Harvest is Here and Week of Activity has Begun.

Farmers Busier than Bees—Clover Harvest Hindered—Other Crops.

The past few days have been days of activity on Rush county farms. The weather has been just right for the ripening wheat. The growing corn, especially that which was planted late, is small for this time in the season. The ground has been thoroughly worked and the corn is almost exempt from weeds, which is a relief to the farmer. The corn although late has time to make an abundant crop, but it is feared much of it will be neglected on account of the other work crowding the farmer.

During the present week the clover hay crop, which is light, must be taken care of, and most of the wheat must be in the shock not later than Friday. The rains of the past two or three evenings have hindered the farmer with his clover harvest somewhat, but he is fast "making hay."

As we predicted some time ago, the wheat harvest is an early one, and the quality the best we have had for many years. There is some little complaint that the wheat is becoming straw fallen, but we don't think at this late date that there will be any serious damage from this source.

The oats crop, which has had a struggle for existence, will be short, yet there will be some fair to good yields. Timothy meadows probably have shown more improvement than any other crop on the farm, although the yield of hay will not be equal to last year's over bountiful crop.

Potatoes are beginning to look better. For a while it looked like the dry weather and bugs would complete their destruction, but since the rains of late the vines have made rapid growth and bid fair to outstrip the bugs.

The strawberry season is almost an end and the fruit has been the largest and best flavored we have had for many years. Apples, peaches and plums will be a full crop, although the apples are dropping badly, there remains all the trees are able to support.

Vegetables are doing fine since the rains and the gardens are all looking well.

The next two weeks will be the most busy of the season and every available able bodied man will be in demand in the rural districts.

MRS. LEVI PEA PASSES AWAY

Had Been Suffering From Mental Trouble — Funeral
Friday.

Mrs. Eva Pea, wife of Levi Pea, who had been insane and in a serious condition for about three weeks, died about 5:30 Tuesday evening at her home in Brookside. Her death had been expected for several days.

Mrs. Pea was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Perkins, of West Fourth street, and was born and raised in Rushville. She leaves besides the husband, two daughters. She was born March 19th, 1866. Mrs. Pea's illness is thought to have been due to some patent medicine that she had taken.

The funeral service will be held at the residence Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Virgil W. Tevis, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church. Interment will be in East Hill.

—City Attorney George W. Young was at Indianapolis on business today.

BANQUET FOR FATHER ROWAN

Knights of Columbus Will Give Farewell Reception Friday Night.

At a meeting held last night the Knights of Columbus made the preliminary arrangements for a reception and banquet to be given Friday night at the K. of C. club rooms, over the postoffice in honor of Rev. P. H. Rowan, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church, who preaches his last sermon in this city, Sunday, after which he goes to Evansville to take charge of St. Joseph's parish. Mark Purcell will be toastmaster at the banquet, the program for which has not entirely been completed.

EARLY COMPLETION OF GREENSBURG LINE

I. & C. Traction Company to Begin Laying Track
Next Week.

Tuesday's Greensburg Review says: From an authoritative source it is given out that the work on the Greensburg extension of the I. & C. Traction line, is to be pushed to an early completion. The work of laying the track will be begun next week with a large force of men. A construction train is being fitted out at Rushville now for this purpose. Enough ties have been purchased to complete the line to Greensburg and these ties are now being shipped to points along the line. Nearly all the concrete work is completed with the exception of a viaduct over the Big Four tracks near Shelbyville, and it is believed that this also will be finished within three weeks. A switch has been laid at this point and the work on the viaduct will not delay the laying of the rails and ties. The only thing that can now delay the early completion of this line will be a delay in the shipment of the materials. Over twelve miles of the extension from Rushville to Connersville have been completed and the order has gone out to push the work on both divisions.

RURAL CARRIER IN RUNAWAY

Gilbert Boys Sustains Slight Injuries in Accident this Morning.

Gilbert Boys, carrier on route 10, met with an accident this morning about 8:30 near the residence of A. L. Kennedy, four and one-half miles northeast of town, that came near resulting seriously.

Mr. Boys' horse became frightened at an automobile and ran away. Mr. Boys leaped from the wagon and caught the animal by the bridle. He was dragged about six rods and was forced to let go. The wagon shafts were broken and the vehicle was otherwise demolished. Mr. Boys was skinned and bruised about the hands. One wrist was sprained.

VALUABLE CLOTHING STOLEN FROM CAMP

Tuesday's Connersville News says: Charles Martin, an employe at the I. & C. camp, notified the police, this afternoon that a new suit of blue cloth, with double breasted coat, made for a man weighing 160 pounds, was stolen from camp today. The clothing was stolen by a white man of slim build, aged 22 years. The police are asked to be on the watch for him.

NEW LODGE OF COLORED MASONS

Is Being Instituted in Rushville With a Good Charter Membership.

D. W. Caine, of Seymour, Ind., Grand Master of Indiana Colored Masons, is in the city instituting a Masonic lodge in Rushville. This new lodge starts out with sixteen charter members, and has a prospect of at least thirty members in the near future. For the present the lodge will be under dispensation.

The Entered Apprentice degree was conferred last night by Grand Master Caine with the assistance of some colored Masons from Connersville. The work is being done in the colored Odd Fellows hall, third floor over Mulno & Guffin's store.

Tonight the Fellowcraft degree will be conferred and several members from Shelbyville will assist.

The Master Mason degree will be conferred tomorrow night and this will be followed by an elaborate banquet.

Grand Master Caine, who has been in our city several days, compliments Rushville on the good class of colored citizens, and on the number of excellent young colored people.

LOCAL BREVITIES

Dean & Cook, of this city, today received two new automobiles from the Reo Manufacturing company. One of them is a touring car and the other is a "runabout." The latter has been sold to Connersville parties.

Greensburg News, Tuesday: T. M. Greenlee and Bert Newkirk were here this morning, paying the employees on the Indianapolis & Southeastern traction line. They spread their pay roll on a tray, on the southeast corner of the court yard and from there handed out the much sought lucre.

Monday evening as O. H. & D. No. 38, due here at 5:55, west-bound, was between Brownsville and the high bridge, one end of a drive rod became loose from one of the drivers by the breaking or loosening of the clamp that held it in place. In dropping to the ground it struck the ties, and gravel was torn up and fell on the train. A running board was also torn away and a piston rod slightly bent. The train was brought promptly to a halt by the application of the air brakes and no injury beyond somewhat of a shaking up to the passengers and train men resulted.

The following named ladies formed a party that picniced yesterday afternoon at "Hill View," the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Blackledge, north of town: Misses Alice Norris, Bertha Helm, Bertha Carmichael, Ethel Bebout, Elzie Thomas and Minnie Hayworth, and Mrs. Alfred Blackledge, Mrs. Homer Bell, of Huntington, W. Va., and Mrs. Ada Williams, of Cincinnati. The party was chaperoned by Mrs. Ben L. McFarlan and Mrs. William Alexander. A bountiful dinner was spread in the woods and an enjoyable time indulged in.

Mr. Wm. Ranck, of Howard county, a former resident of Orange township, who has been afflicted with brain trouble since March first, became violently insane last Thursday. No one was at home at the time except his mother and sister and as they could not control him he went about the house breaking windows and doors, crockery and dishes, and in fact everything he could find. He broke up a new corn drill and a buggy. They telephoned for the sheriff who came to the farm and took him to Kokomo and put him in jail, where he will remain until they can get him into the hospital for the insane at Indianapolis.

—Mrs. Frances Frazee, of Orange, has returned home after a visit with her son, John P. Frazee and family, of North Main street.

—Miss Mayme Champion, of this city, left today for an extended visit at North Madison, Ind.

WATSON WILL NOT DISCUSS TARIFF

Closing Rush of Business in Congress Causes Abandonment of Speech.

Representative Watson has abandoned his idea of delivering a speech on the tariff at this session of Congress. The remaining few days will be devoted to the rush of closing business, and political speeches will be tabooed. Mr. Watson had secured a mass of interesting data which probably will not see the light of public print. He sent letters to all the leading manufacturers of Indiana (who include some of the largest in the world in their respective lines) and asked them if it is true that they sell cheaper abroad than in the United States, and if so, why. He has received responses from nearly all of those addressed. These replies would make very interesting reading now when the tariff is one of the subjects uppermost in the public mind.

RACE HORSE RUNS AWAY

Harry Jones and Colored Hostler Thrown From Cart Near Penna. Depot.

A four-year-old sorrel mare, driven by Harry Jones, ran away on West Second street about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, colliding with the electric light pole at the corner of the Pennsylvania depot, breaking the cart and throwing Mr. Jones and a colored hostler, who was in the cart with him, a distance of twenty feet or more. The two men were bruised about the hips and shoulders, but otherwise escaped injury. The horse ran west on Second street and stopped of its own accord in the new addition recently laid off by the Rushville Land Investment company.

Mr. Jones cannot imagine what frightened the horse. It was her third attempt to run during the forenoon.

Mr. Jones had allowed her to run each time before and intended to do so a third time, but he feared a collision with a freight train that was coming up the track, so he attempted to turn the mare toward the station, where he thought she would slip in the mud and come to a stop. The horse was but slightly scratched in the collision with the pole.

The dog acted strangely and was soon put to death. It is not believed that it was mad, however.

AMUNITION FOR FOURTH OF JULY

Is Daily Arriving in Rushville—Fireworks on Exhibition.

There is daily arriving in Rushville nearly enough powder in the shape of innocent little fire crackers, dynamite crackers, buzz-wheels, spit devils, Roman candles, sky-rockets and so on down the Fourth of July explosive line to blow the city of Rushville, seventy-eight feet into the ozone.

Youthful Rushvillians who will play the part of the harvest, which physicians and surgeons are preparing for, are ready for the worst, which includes the pistol-that-forgot-it-was-loaded and the premature-exploding cannon. Perhaps there will not be any more noise this coming Fourth of July massacre, "celebration" as it was formerly known, but such a statement offers but little consolation. In a few days the police will issue the annual list of regulations to Little Willie, regarding his behavior on the Nation's birthday, cautioning him to refrain from deliberate assassination on the public highways, and other such pranks. On July 5th, in many places the following little bit of rhyme may be appropriate:

"Willie lit a dynamite cracker; Now he rests where it is Blacker."

SAYS THAT HIS WIFE ABANDONED HIM

Jacob W. Slack, of Gings, today, through his attorney, Walter E. Smith, filed suit in the circuit court for divorce from his wife, Leona Slack, who is thought to be in Ohio at the present time. The plaintiff alleges abandonment. This is the second case in which the defendant is a non-resident of the State that has been filed in the circuit court since the recent supreme court decision, effecting non-resident decrees.

DEATHS FOR LAST MONTH

Interesting Figures Given Out By State Board of Health.

Carbolic Acid Was Favorite Route to Suicide—Eight Murders During May

One old man, 91 years of age, died from the effects of a rat bite, and he was only one of 146 persons in Indiana who died violent deaths in May. It was an unusually large number for one month. Of this number eight were murders and twenty-five were suicides. Among the suicides nine persons chose the carbolic acid route, three took morphine, two took potash in some form or other, two used other poisons, four were due to gunshots, four persons killed themselves by hanging and one sought death by drowning.

Accidents cost 113 lives. During the heavy thunderstorms of May four persons were killed by lightning. The railroads of the State killed fourteen, while only one life was lost on the electric roads. Seven old persons died from the result of fracture of the hip, and fracture of the skull cost seven lives. Fractures of other bones resulted in three more deaths.

Thirteen lives were crushed out by falling timbers, falling stone and other similar accidents. Six were killed by falls. Eleven were burned or scalded to death. The open season for drowning appears to have arrived also, as thirteen deaths were due to that cause. Most of the victims were boys who went swimming in the rivulets and creeks. One baby and two adults died of asphyxiation. One death was due to lockjaw. Horses killed five.

There were twelve accidental poisonings, of which four were caused by strychnia, two by morphine and three by unnamed poisons. One person drank coal oil, another used carbolic acid, and in one case death was caused by drinking a patent medicine of some kind.

Of the murder victims seven were males and one a woman. Nineteen men and six women committed suicide and eighty-one male and thirty-two females were killed by accident.

SLIGHT CHANGE IN THE RIGHT OF WAY

Asked by I. & C. of Connersville Council—Street Work Begins Tomorrow.

Tuesday's Connersville News says: Judge Claude Cambern and J. W. Moore, attorney and chief engineer of the I. & C. traction company, were in the city today. A slight change in the route of the line through the city was asked, and will, without question, be granted by the city council. The company asks that in making the detour in coming from the old Elwood hotel grounds into Western avenue they be allowed to build their track a little nearer the canal than the first specifications call for, thus giving them a more gradual curve.

The first work on the streets will positively begin next Thursday morning, as men, places for boarding, tools, etc., have been provided for. As stated, yesterday, this will be an important part of the work and will stimulate trade at boarding houses and elsewhere while in progress.

Many of the men employed are skilled and command much better pay than those engaged on the line outside the city.

No definite news can be had as to the route east of the city, but that will be determined, no doubt, before very long.

In his Democratic State convention speech, Champ Clark declared: "The principles of Democracy, like the gospel, never change." Then may we have pestilence, war, famine, anything; but may the country be saved another such dose of Democratic principles as it got in the early nineties. If it's the same old trouble breeding brand of panic producing principles, the warning of Champ Clark is timely, for no one wants a return to those dark days.

Word comes from Bryan in far-off Russia, that he deplores the tendency toward Socialism in this country.
And about the same time comes an issue of his paper, the Commoner, declaring the Chicago platform still lives. Let's see; that platform was mostly made up of free silver, greenbackism, government ownership—all socialism in their trend, educating the people to believe in that very socialism which Bryan is now quoted as abhorring.

It is to their credit that many Democratic papers over the State frankly declare that the Democratic party cannot expect the support of the better class of voters, either in their own or any other party, so long as the Democratic national chairman continues to derive a revenue from a gambling concern which he owns at French Lick. The suggestion is frequently made in those papers that Tom Taggart should get rid of his French Lick Monte Carlo or the Democratic party should get rid of Tom Taggart as national chairman if the party wishes to lay any claim to respectability.

FAITH IN THE GOVERNOR

Preachers Willing to Leave Law Enforcement Where It Belongs.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 27.—The efforts of William Randolph Hearst to wipe out the big gambling casinos at Thomas Taggart's French Lick health resort have fallen short again, as a committee of Presbyterian ministers appointed as the result of his agitation to investigate his charges and appeal to Governor Hanly to stop gambling, decided to drop the matter. The committee, held a brief meeting, after which Rev. O. D. O'Dell gave out a statement that the ministers are confident that Governor Hanly will do the right thing, and that they leave the problem to him. "The governor has not disappointed us in the past," he said, "and we do not think he will disappoint us this time. Our position is unchanged in that we think that something should be done quickly." The statement of the governor that if the ministers will bide their time something may be done, is taken generally to mean that he is now getting ready to proceed against the proprietors of the casinos. Taggart's friends say that he does not own or operate the one at French Lick, but it is not denied that someone receives a large financial reward for the privilege of operating it. There was a report here today that the governor and Attorney General Miller may attempt to induce the Orange county officials to proceed against the proprietors of the casinos, and in case of their refusal to act, that impeachment proceedings may be instituted. It is not known definitely, however, what course is contemplated.

It is authoritatively stated that there is much anxiety at the state house over the attacks made against the railway commission act to determine whether it is constitutional. The law never was regarded as being particularly strong, and fear is expressed that it cannot withstand the fire of the skillful railroad attorneys. If it is declared unconstitutional U. B.
Hunt of Winchester, C. B. McAdams of Williamsport, and Judge W. J. Wood of Evansville, who are holding out $4,000-a-year jobs, will be cut off the salary list. It is likely that they will know their fate within a short time, as cases are pending now in the appellate and Marion county superior courts to settle the question of the constitutionality of the act. The appellate court will render a decision this week as to the constitutionality of the law.

The state board of health's bulletin shows there were 2,665 deaths in Indiana during the month of May. The death per thousand population in the cities was 15.2; for the country, 9.8.
The death rate for the larger cities follows: Indianapolis, 16.3; Evansville, 13.6; Fort Wayne, 16.7; South Bend, 16.1; Terre Haute, 21.8; Muncie, 14.8. There were 112 cases of small pox scattered through eleven counties. There were but two deaths from the disease. Tuberculosis caused the death of 376 persons; pneumonia, 213; cancer, 128. Most of the cancer victims were women over fifty years of age.

No man's wages in Indiana are exempt from garnishment for taxes, according to a decision handed down by the appellate court in the case of A.
B. Hobbs, a motorman, at Eaton, who refused to pay his road taxes amounting to $2.50. The town marshal thereupon garnished his wages, adding $18.45 as costs of the proceeding. Hobbs set up his usual plea that his wages were exempt because he was a married man living with his family, but the court held that the usual right to exemption does not protect a man from claims for taxes and cost of collecting them.

THE INDIANA STATE DEBT

Official Figures Showing How Two Parties Have Handled Financial Affairs of a Great State.

The following are official figures on the Indiana state debt. The dark figures show result of period of Democratic control; the light figures of Republican control:

In 1861 it was . . . $10,179,267.00
In 1870 it was . . . 4,167,507.02
In 1880 it was . . . 4,998,178.34
In 1882 it was . . . 4,876,608.02
In 1895 it was . . . 7,520,615.12
Aug. 1, 1902 it was . . . 2,887,615.12 August, 1904 it was . . . 2,162,615.12 May, 1906 it was . . . 805,615.12

All the state debt has now been wiped out except a series of bonds which are not payable until 1910.

What These Figures Show.

These official figures show that during three periods of Republican administration in Indiana since 1860, the state debt has been reduced in the aggregate over $12,000,000, a sum sufficient to extinguish it but for corresponding increases under periods of Democratic control.

That during every period of Democratic administration the state debt and interest were increased.

That never before in Indiana's history has the state debt been reduced more rapidly than during the present era of Republican administration beginning with 1895; and, it may be added, that never in the history of Indiana was the state's debt increased so rapidly as during the era of Democratic control between 1885 and 1891.

That no era of Democratic state administration, taken as a whole, during the past half century, has resulted in a decrease of the state's indebtedness; on the contrary, that the debt itself is a monument to Democratic fiscal and legislative mismanagement.

These figures are cold facts—records of the way the two parties have managed the state's affairs. A careful consideration and examination of their records should satisfy every voter which party is worthy the confidence of the people in looking after the business affairs of Indiana.

teenth annual convention of the Indiana Christian Endeavor Union is being held here this week.

PURE FOOD LAW

Indiana Has One and It Is Going to Be Tested at Indianapolis.

MEAT MEN ON THE RACK

Affidavits Filed In Criminal Court Charge Dealers With Selling
"Doctored" Meats.

The State Board of Health Has Inaugurated Campaign Against Food Poisoners.

Indianapolis, June 27.—Fifty affidavits have been prepared against meat dealers in this city, charging them with violating the law by using coloring matter or preservatives in prepared meats and ground meat products sold on their stands.

The action in criminal court grows out of the showing made by the state chemist in tests made at the state laboratory. Samples of ground meats, sausage, hamburger steak, veal loaf, etc., bought in open market, were put through chemical tests and preservatives were found in many cases, while coloring matter for making the ground meats attractive to the eye was discovered to be common. If the accused dealers are found guilty under each count they may be imprisoned for a term not longer than six months and fined not to exceed $700, or they may be fined and not imprisoned. The affidavits are based on the pure food law passed by the legislature in 1905.

Section 539 of this act provides that no person shall, within this state, manufacture for sale, offer for sale, or sell any drug or article of food which is adulterated. The term drug shall be deemed to include all medicines for internal or external use, antiseptics, disinfectants and cosmetics. The term food shall be deemed to include confectionery, condiments and all articles used by man for food or drink.
An article shall be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this section.

In the case of the adulteration of food, Division B provides as follows:

"B. In case of food. (1) If any substance or substances have been mixed with it, so as to reduce or lower or injuriously affect its quality or strength. (2) If any inferior or cheaper substance or substances have been substituted wholly or in part for it. (3) If any valuable constituents have been wholly or in part abstracted from it. (4) If it be an imitation of or sold under the name of another article.
(5) If it consist wholly or in part of a diseased, corrupt, decomposed or rotten animal or vegetable substance, whether manufactured or not, or, in the case of milk, if it be the product of a diseased animal. (6) If it be colored, coated, polished or powdered, whereby damage is concealed, or if it be made to appear better or of greater value than it really is. (7) If it contain any added poisonous ingre-

Malicious Prosecution Charged.

Kellogg, under arrest here for alleged swindling a number of people at Lafayette, Bloomington and Rensselaer, has brought suit in the Tippecanoe superior court against George W. Michael, the prosecuting witness in the case pending here. Kellogg seeks damages in the sum of $15,000 for malicious prosecution.

Allentown, Pa., June 27.—A platoon of the state constabulary which is on duty in this city in connection with the streetcar strike, fired into a crowd last night and injured a boy.

THE LAST OF LINDHURST

Big Jewel Robbery Fixes Mrs. Thaw's Determination to Desert Old Home.

Pittsburg, June 27.—While seeking information of the Thaw family it was learned last night that the home of Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry Thaw, who is charged with the murder of Stanford White in New York, was robbed of her jewels and silver plate within the past few weeks, the value of which is said to amount to $60,000. The matter was reported to the police, but because of the prominence of the family the incident was suppressed. All the cities of the country have been notified of the robbery and a description of the jewels has been sent to the various police departments. The jewels are said to be some of rare value gathered by Mrs.
William Thaw in her travels and include strings of pearls, diamonds of rare value and perfect color and silver plate that was convenient for the robbers to take away. Heavier pieces of plate were left behind. The loss of this property is one of the last of the many sensational events that have marked the history of Lindhurst. Mrs. Thaw, when she left for Europe last week, did so with the intention of never returning to that house again.
A new and smaller home is being constructed and was to have been ready upon her return from the visit to the Earl and Countess of Yarmouth.

Grief of the Sister.
London, June 27.—The Countess of Yarmouth (formerly Miss Alice Thaw) was greatly affected on learning of the tragedy in New York in which her brother, Harry K. Thaw, figured. The coroner's inquest will be held on Thursday, and in all probability the case will then be considered by the grand jury, when the prisoner's wife will be required to appear before that body, she having been served with a subpoena while in consultation at the office of her husband's counsel. Every effort is now being made by both sides to expedite the legal preliminaries so that the arrangement and trial may take place at the earliest possible date.

Mining Differences Adjusted.

Bay City, Mich., June 27.—The differences which have existed between the coal operators and miners of the Michigan district since March 31 last, have been formally settled and the miners will go to work at once. The scale of 1903, carrying an advance of 5.55 per cent, was adopted. The inflation fee, which the union had placed at $50, was reduced to $25.

Two Struck by Lightning.

Marshalltown, Ia., June 27.—Robert Showalter and Abbie Shumaky, each eighteen years old, were struck by lightning here last evening. The girl was fatally injured. Showalter's recovery is doubtful.

EMOTIONAL INSANITY

Upon This 11 a Young Millionaire Will Claim Immunity From Punishment For White's Murder.

The Alleged Wrong Done His Wife Will Be His Plea In Justification.

New York, June 27.—Frankly admitting that he killed Stanford White, the famous architect, and pleading in justification of the deed that White had ruined the life of his wife, the beautiful former chorus girl and artist's model, Florence Evelyn Nesbit, Harry Kendall Thaw of Pittsburg, brother of the Countess of Yarmouth, occupies a cell in the Tombs awaiting the action of the grand jury on a charge of murder. His counsel will offer the defense of insanity. The prisoner has been examined by eminent alienists, retained on his behalf and by the district attorney's office.
The coroner's inquest will be held on Thursday, and in all probability the
case will then be considered by the grand jury, when the prisoner's wife
will be required to appear before that
subpoena while in consultation at the office of her husband's counsel. Every
to expedite the legal preliminaries so
that the arrangement and trial may
take place at the earliest possible date.

Not since the killing of James Fisk, jr., by Edward S. Stokes on the staircase of the Grand Central hotel more than thirty years ago has the metropolis been shocked by so startling and dramatic a tragedy as that which was enacted Monday night in the presence of an audience of more than 1,000 persons in the roof theater of Madison Square Garden. Not the least dramatic feature of the tragedy is the fact that Mr. White met his death in the structure which is perhaps the most conspicuous memorial of his architectural genius.

Rarely has the case against any prisoner moved with more rapidity than did the proceedings which ended in Thaw's formal commitment to the Tombs. Save in this unusual and almost frenzied haste, the routine followed and the treatment accorded to Thaw differed in no respect from that meted out to any prisoner charged with a capital offense. Roused from his cell in the West Thirtieth street station house, Thaw, attired in fresh clothing brought to him by his valet, was shackled in spite of his protestations to a detective and taken in the patrol wagon to police headquarters.
There, after awaiting his turn in the long line of petty criminals arrested during the night, he was photographed and his measurements taken on the Bertillon system. Again in the patrol wagon he was taken to the criminal court building, where a great multitude gathered to catch a passing glimpse of him, and he was arraigned in the police court. There proceedings were of the briefest and after the bare formality of arraignment had been undergone, Thaw was remanded to the custody of the coroner, and on his order committed to the Tombs to await the result of the inquest.

Throughout the proceedings Thaw showed little evidence of agitation except when the detective approached him in the station house to affix the handcuffs to his wrists. Then he protested vehemently, but on being assured that this was the invariable practice, he submitted without further words. While leaving the station house and even in the courtroom, he was compelled to run the gauntlet of batteries of cameras, from which he shielded himself as well as he could by covering his face with his unshackled hand. Lewis Delafield, who took charge of Thaw's interests immediately after his arrest, announced that the firm of Black, Olcott, Gruber & Bonyne, of which former Governor Frank S. Black is the senior partner, had been retained to conduct the defense. Later Mr. Delafield and former Judge W. M. K. Olcott had an interview with the prisoner in the consultation room in the prison, after which Mr. Delafield declined to say anything about the case except it was now entirely in the hands of Mr. Black and Mr. Olcott, who declined to make any statement.

The district attorney's office is entirely engaged in looking up Thaw's antecedents, his mode of living, reported dissipations and indulgences, with a view to analyzing their bearing on his mental condition. On this point Mr.
Nott said today: "Thaw is not insane now, nor was he insane at the time he shot White."

Asked concerning the probable date of the trial, Assistant District Attorney Nott said: "I know of no reason why Thaw should be treated any differently than an ordinary accused mur-derer. He will have to wait his turn to be tried, in all probability. However, Mr. Jerome will be back in town on Monday next and will decide that."

ICE DEALERS ON GRILL

Marion County Grand Jury Will Investigate Alleged Trust.

Indianapolis, June 27.—Every ice dealer in Indianapolis will be called before the July grand jury in an inquiry instituted by Prosecutor Charles P. Benedict for the purpose of checking the ice trust in its combination to raise the price of ice in Indianapolis. Prosecutor Benedict announces that if evidence can be procured that the ice dealers of Indianapolis have combined to control prices the dealers will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The prosecutor believes that the Indiana law is sufficiently strong to break the trust and to punish its members if a combination to control prices can be proven to exist. With the right kind of evidence, he believes, the combination can be broken as effectually as the ice combination at Toledo, O., was broken by the court, which sent a number of ice dealers to jail. Subpoenas will be issued to every ice dealer in Indianapolis to appear before the grand jury and under oath tell about the conduct of the business in this city.

Although ice retailed at 25 cents last summer to the small consumers, the cost was raised to 30 cents per 100 pounds at the early part of this season, and soon advanced to 35 cents. It has been announced that a further advance to 40 cents will be made. As a circumstance in confirmation of the generally accepted belief that the ice dealers have formed a combination to control prices, it is notable that the raise in each instance has been simultaneous on the part of all the individual dealers.

WHY NOT PROHIBITION?

Conservative Reasons Why Many Believers in Temperance Are Not Third Party Voters.

In a thoughtful editorial the always sober, sensible and conservative Madison Courier says in answer to the question, "Why not prohibition?"

"Chiefly because the people are not prepared for it, and hence it could not be enforced. It might be said, also, if they, the people, were truly in favor of it it would not be needed. This, however, is only measurably true. There will always be some people who will drink to excess, as there are others who will go to excess in other directions. Inasmuch as the people govern in this country, laws to be effective must meet their approbation, and ultimately be enforced or not according to their will. Moreover, it is not the gospel method to rely upon force but upon conviction and moral suasion. Jesus did not go to Rome and secure legislation establishing his kingdom. He appealed to the hearts and consciences of individual men."

The Courier thinks, too, that both Democrats and Republicans would favor prohibition if they were convinced that it would put an end to intemperance.

"Opposition to prohibition or refusal to leave the Republican or Democratic party in order to secure prohibition, does not mean that Republicans or Democrats are favorable to intemperance—it simply means that they are convinced that prohibition is not the right way or the best way to deal with the proposition."

RUSHVILLE REMINISCENCES

"THAT OLD GRAVE YARD."

In one of Jeff's recent articles, he makes mention of the "old graveyard," west of town. I have a very vivid recollection of the old place and can relate several incidents in connection therewith that may perhaps interest the readers of the Republican, at least the citizens of Rushville, who know all about the place. But before I visit the "tombs" I want to say something of another matter mentioned by him in your issue of May 9th.

I quote a part of the item: "There was a fight one day in Rushville between two men named Buzzard and Pea." He gives as his authority, "Uncle Dave Priest," whom almost everybody knew. Now unless there were two fights with a similarity of names, I must take issue with Jeff, or rather with Uncle Dave, his informant, both as to the parties engaged and the scene of the fight.

I knew Uncle Dave Priest very well and I remember that often in certain jovial and hilarious moods his ideas were liable to get considerably mixed. The fight I have in mind took place in Milroy and not in Rushville, and not between "Buzzard and Pea," but between "Buzzard and Crane"—neither of whom would care to notice so small a "fry" as any Pea that I ever saw about Rushville. No doubt it's the same Buzzard that Jeff says "picked the Pea," for there was but one fighting Buzzard, and that was old Joe, the man I am telling about. He lived a little below Milroy, and Hayden Crane, a prosperous and very respectable farmer, lived also a few miles from the place, but not in the same neighborhood as Buzzard. One day they met in Milroy in "Bill Sproles" store. I was working there at the time in a room adjoining the store.

Buzzard was drinking and in a mood for a "muss." I don't know whether there had been any previous misunderstanding between them or not. But it took but a very short time to spring a quarrel, then a blow, and then a clinch. I heard the hubbub and ran out just as they came out of the store door, kicking at each other in a very determined manner. Crane soon downed Buzzard and proceeded to make the feathers fly in a very vigorous manner until a constable ran up and separated the belligerents and commanded the peace. The oddity or ridiculousness of the thing did not strike me at the time. The names of the parties, "Buzzard and Crane" ought to have suggested something humorous and comical, but I failed to "catch on" until the next day while walking down by the old Larimore mill, trying to compose my mind and bring it into harmony with the beauties of nature that surrounded me. A devilish boy came along singing at the top of his voice some roaring, rattling, ribald, rhyme that showed up the funny and ridiculous side of the bitter contest between the birds in such a way as to impress itself so firmly upon my mind that I have never been able to get myself clear of it. I could quote the thing today "verbatim et literatim," but it being such awfully "hot stuff" would not look very well served up in "cold type." Perhaps a prize ring referee would have pronounced it a fair and square fight, but all the same, it certainly was one of the most foul (fowl) affairs, I ever witnessed.

And while the names easily and readily suggested the feathery tribe they were by no means feather weights, both being strong men able to put up a savage fight. Crane was undoubtedly much the better man of the two, both physically and morally.

But I started out to tell something about the old grave yard and I confess that I am somewhat shy about approaching it. For some reason it always brings a creepy feeling over me whenever I think of the place or hear it mentioned. Memory pictures it very plainly yet, although I always avoided it as much as possible. In my day there, it never was honored with any softer or more soothing designation than simply "grave yard."

And, unless it has been better cared for than it was then it should never bear any other title, and it should be written and, if possible, always spoken in italics.

It was the most lonely and forbidding place I ever saw. Neglected as it was, it soon grew up thick with briars and bushes of all kinds until nothing could be seen but an occasional old gray head-stone that chanced to stand a little above its fellows and seemed to be peering out through some small vista in the surrounding shrubbery, looking for all the world like some restless ghost that had forced its way up into the outer world again and seemed to be waiting in its awful solemn and somber silence for an opportunity to avenge itself upon some unwary passerby for some wrong done it while in this life. The place seemed to be haunted by myriads of real or imaginary "spooks" that any distorted mind might shape up into any kind of ghost; they were most afraid of. Wild, weird, damp, dark and gloomy, it was shunned by everybody except when forced to enter its dismal portals to bury some one, who could no longer offer any protest against being laid there.

Carrying the place in my mind as I have for sixty years, I am free to proclaim that I would rather "my body should be buried in the rough sands of the sea at low ebb tide" than be laid there with all the roses and lilies that nature in her most generous profusion might cause to bloom above me.

I recall an incident in connection with the place that may not be entirely uninteresting to those whose memory runs that far back. I have said that no one visited the place voluntarily. I must qualify that statement a little, for there was one exception. One man made regular visits there despite the ghost stories that were told—a poor unfortunate soul, a pitiful slave to the demon drink. A short time before that the Order of Sons of Temperance was instituted there with my very dear friend, Lon Sexton at the head of it. They persuaded this poor fellow to join them and for a short time seemed to be "faithful to his obligation." He straightened up and gave encouragement to his family and friends that he would pull through all right and be himself again. But he was weak, from long indulgence in the habit and in a short time, unable to withstand the renewed assaults of the enemy he fell and was lost. Trying to conceal the matter from his family and friends he resorted to the old graveyard and there hid his bottle, or jug, thinking, of course, it would be secure there and he would be safe from detection, since no one would be likely to go there. But his brothers of the "Order" became suspicious of his mysterious trips to the place and set a watch upon him and very soon detected him in the act of "putting the bottle to his lips." He was promptly arraigned by the Order, and not exhibiting a proper spirit of penitence or making any satisfactory promises for the future, he was expelled and shortly after was carried and laid (to rest I hope) in his favorite haunt. It was a strange place to select for indulging an appetite, but, after all, it was a fitting place and in perfect keeping with the devil's work.

Just while these things were being enacted, another incident took place there that, for some little time, kept us guessing as to its cause.

Rushville was just then receiving her first installment of "Yankee School Marms." The term was first spoken derisively and with a sneer as a term of reproach, but they proved themselves of such noble worth in the pursuit of the work to which they had devoted their lives that the tongue of the scoffer was quickly silenced and praise was awarded where blame had been freely bestowed, and a smile of approval rested on the lips where the sneer quivered before. God bless the "Yankee School Marm." And, living as I am now right among them in their original home, and knowing them as I do, I want to enlarge and make broader the scope of the benediction and say, "God bless the Yankee girl ever and always, wherever dispersed around the globe."

One of these noble young women came to Rushville, the pioneer of others who were soon to follow. Perhaps she had not heard the gruesome stories that were told about the graveyard, or, if hearing them, her good, hard Yankee sense had ignored them, and, tempted by the wild flowers that bloomed there, ventured boldly in to gather some. But something frightened her fearfully and she hastily left the place and could never be persuaded to go there again. What it was that gave her the dreadful fright she could not tell, but, in the quaint language of the negro poet's ghost story, "Suthin skeert her most to death."

When the poor fellow was detected there drinking, the mystery was fairly solved. It was generally agreed that it was the man behind the "little brown jug" that "skeert" the Yankee school marm. Other incidents connected with the place will appear in a future letter.

HE GOT HIS CIGAR

Sherman Blake Went Ten Miles for it, but is Happy Now.

Sherman Blake's friends were surprised to see him on the street yesterday, as when he left for his camp a week ago he said that Rushville would know him no more for a month.

His unexpected appearance is explained by the fact that he ran out of Wadsworth Bros' Chicos, and had to come to Thor. W. Lytle's to get another box.

As he expressed it, "camping with out a Chico to smoke is like lemonade without a lemon, and even though I had to come ten miles to get my cigar, I am happy now." While he said this he looked the personification of contentment, letting a long whiff of fragrant Havana smoke float upward.

Thor. W. Lytle has just received another shipment of Wadsworth Bros', Chicos, and want all who like a good cigar, better than most ten cent cigars, to try a Chico, and see how well pleased they will be for half the money, as it retails for a straight five cents.
